KINCAID ACQUITTED. The Long Murder Trial Ended at Half-past

Six Last Evening. Yesterday when THE STAR went to press the Kincaid case was in the hands of the jury. judge and Marshal Ransdell went to dinner. Mr. C. Maurice Smith of counsel for the defense remained in the neighborhood of the court house with the defendant. Many friends of the defendant remained in High tide in the river, 8:38 p.m. Low tide in the court room, although the ladies who had tie, but Washington closed shead with half an been in attendance during the day all disap- inning to spare. The batteries were Carsey peared after waiting a reasonable time for eturn of the jury.

Those who waited became impatient as the time passed away, and every sound made by the opening or closing of a door or the ap-proach of a court official was taken as an indi-cation that the jury had reached a verdict. A VERDICT REACHED. Finally, at 5:35 o'clock, word was sent down from the jury room that a verdict had been reached. There was not a single court official in the room at that time except the court crier and one of the marshal's deputies. No one knew where the judge had gone and conse-quently there was nothing to do but wait. District Attorney Cole reached the court soon after his assistant, Mr. Clagett, and when the latter informed him that the jury had reached a conclusion they were both of the opinion that the verdict was for the defendant district attorney went into court soon after-ward and took his sent, while the defendant, who was the most interested in the result of the jury's deliberations, took the seat which be had occupied during the lengthy investigation. He then moved to the other end of counsel table and engaged in conversation with the district attorney and remained there until the judge appeared. ADMONISHED BY THE JUDGE. Then there was another short delay, because

Clerk Williams, who had gone off to dinner, had not returned. While waiting for the clerk and jury Judge Bradley admonished those present not to give vent to their feelings, either inapproval or disapproval of the verdict. "I desire to caution the entire audience," he said, "before the jury returns. I do not know any more what the verdict is than you do, but whatever it may be let me warn you to observe the proprieties of the occasion and not let feelings lead you to any demonstration of approval or disapproval of the verdict. If there is any violation of this injunction I will deem it my duty to impose such penalty as the case may require. If you will only stop and reflect for one moment and realize the solemnity of the occasion I don't believe there will be any demonstration.

Clerk Williams came in a few moments after the judge had delivered this admonition and look it was feared by some of Kincaid's friends that the verdict was something other than ac

and said: "Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" "We have," answered Foreman Ryan.

"What say you, is the defendant guilty or not "Not guilty." was his response.

The spectators had almost forgotten the judge's admonition, for hardly had the words "not guilty" fallen from the foreman's lips when nearly every one in the audience arose. Had it not been for the deputy marshal calling them to order there would no doubt have been an outburst of applause.

Mr. Smith arose and asked that his client be discharged and Judge Bradley said, tainly. AFTER THE ACQUITTAL.

Kincail then walked to the jury box and shook the hand of each juror. In the careful attention to scenic detail, in the wealth of handsome costumes and in the striking variety of dancing and features introduced the presentation of "Miss Columbia" is said to have been seldom equaled, and it can be confidently asserted that the performance will give much pleasure to all th the discovery of America and relates several amusing anecdotes not generally recorded in history. Eighty students appear on the stage in the several ensembles, marches and tableaux, and these young gentlemen portray both the female and male characters of the performance with an ease and grace that be-token familiarity with all matters of stage pro-duction. The entertainment will be a complete novelty to the Washington public, and the an-nouncement that a number of prominent Phila-delphia society people will come from Philadel-phia especially to witness the show here is an evidence of the popularity and genuine excel-lence of the Mask and Wig Club. Among the many features introduced into "Miss Columbia' which were largely responsible for the Philadelphia success of the entertainment may be mentioned a parody of the celebrated Pas de Quatre, a military stage band, a grand Amazon march and a chorus of pretty typewriters.

THE ONE-MILE LIMIT.

The Attorney for the District Says It Extends in All Directions. Intoxicating liquors cannot be sold within one mile of the Soldiers' Home property, no matter which way you measure. That is what the attorney for the District holds to be a correct interpretation of the act of Congress approved February 28, 1891. Clerks are at work now getting up a summary showing the saloons affected by the law. In the county alone, within one mile of Soldiers' Home, last year thirty-two applications for liquor licenses were considered. Of course this year a great

This mile-limit law has been the subject of a great many discussions on the part of liquor men and their attorneys before the Commissioners. The former have maintained that if the law is legal the Commissioners should measure by the ordinary roads of travel. It was the object and intent of the law, they said, to make an inmate of the Soldiers' Home travel to make an inmate of the Soldiers' Home travel one mile before getting any liquor. It was not to be expected that they would cross the country through plowed fields and wade creeks, but that they would travel by road and the latter way should be the route of measurement.

In his opinion upon the subject today Attorney Hazleton, after holding that an air line of a mile should be the one followed, says that the Commissioners should adhere to that rule until at least the courts decide differently.

THE EMANCIPATION CELEBRATION.

Col. Carson Says There Will Be a Pro-"Our celebration on the 16th," says Col. Bradley the following arraignments took place: Perry Carson, "will be a success if hard work Albert Duvall, a young white man of nine-will make it such. I mean that we will have minutes, but as there was some doubt expressed as to when the jury would agree the of outplaying on the part of the Senators on all preceding meetings. We will have in the evening meetings in three or four of our largest churches. We expect quite a number of Mary-land people, including several military com-panies—two from Ealtimore and one each from Annapolis and Kent ounty—and perhaps others will come. Fully 2,500 will come from Baltimore and Kent county and 500 from Annapolis. Since I have recovered I have put my shoulder to the wheel, and you may put it down that Chief Marshal Wm. Nannie is Sent to Jall. Nannie Cole, a colored woman, who has kept house of ill-fame in the "Division" for some years, and William H. Harvey, a white man, were prisoners in the Police Court today. The woman was charged with keeping a bawdy house and the man with having made an as sault on one of the female inmates. Harvey's case was first called and the girls swore that he struck the girl because he thought she had said something to the madam about him.

His fine was $20 or sixty days in jail.

When Nannie's case was called her counsel,

Mr. Carrington, said he was willing to plead guilty and pay a fine of $25, but when Judge

Miller explained that such a penalty was no more than a liceuse and that a just santence was needed in such cases he expressed a willingness on the part of his client to quit the business.

Even that did not satisfy the court and the judge, after commenting on the fact of these people being permitted to conduct their houses in violation of law, said that when a case came to the court the court would do its duty, which was to impose a just sentence in addition to a fine. He added that the sentence should be in proportion to the facts in the particular case.
"Hereafter," the judge said, "in every case of this kind a jail sentence will be imposed."
Sannie was given ten days in jail and fined

Criminal Court Jurors. In the Criminal Court, Judge Bradley, this morning the grand jurors for the April term were called. Charles A. Burdett was returned not found. But two asked to be excused and without avail. There being one vacancy the jurors were adjourned until tomorrow. Of the petit jurors Thomas J. King was reported on the Circuit Court jury; Robert J. McLean, Allen T. Boswell, Wm. N. Morrison, James Nolan, F. L. Harvey, John Shoemaker, Louis C. Denham and Thomas D. Whyte were excused. The vacancies were directed to be filled.
